PRINCIPLES

Studies Sharpened Feeling for Past

History students studied hard in preparation for the bicentennial year. Both reports and textbooks gave each student a personal insight into our nation's heritage. Co-operation between Junior English classes and the History classes produced the "Bicentennial Street Fair," which kindled a patriotic spirit. Additional projects also added variety and interest to the course.

Working Together Strengthened Friendship

English classes thought creatively to the enjoyment of all. Assignments such as humorous short stories and "stained glass window" designs enlivened studies. Everyone benefited from each day's experiences and discovered a new light in literature.

Verbal Basics Absorbed Through Usage

Speech class, although not large, proved a valuable experience for the students who participated. Mrs. McMurrian, a new teacher at First Baptist, instructed the class in public speaking, and activities such as charades and debate added interest to the year.

Typing Developed Dexterity

Typing students learned a skill which would prove valuable to them in many other classes. Mrs. Jordan patiently instructed the two classes, helping them to increase their speed and accuracy. Daily practice was the essential element in the improvement of keyboard methods.

OPP. PAGE TOP: Steve Beebe hammed it up for his classmates. OPP. PAGE LEFT: Bill Bridges delivered an interesting speech. OPP. PAGE BOTTOM: Lee Murdock demonstrated how to use a calculator. ABOVE LEFT: Nancy Griswold worked on an exercise. LEFT: Mrs. Jordan started the timer. ABOVE: Typing students listened carefully in class.

Foreign Language Enhanced International Understanding

French and Spanish classes strove to overcome a language barrier as they studied foreign cultures. Mrs. Hottes in French and Mrs. Lawrence in Spanish taught both grammar and pronunciation to increase mastery of the languages.

OPP. PAGE TOP, Nancy Crook modeled for a drawing. OPP. PAGE RIGHT: Art students worked on various individual projects. OPP. PAGE BOTTOM, Gil McElroy lettered a poster. TOP Mike McKelvy and Betty Tucker studied an educational map. ABOVE Mrs. Hottes graded Laura Latham on an oral report. RIGHT: Mrs. Lawrence entered her classroom in Dodd Hall.

Young Artists Acquired Sense of Design

Art students experimented with many different forms. Creativity was the key to the art courses, making them interesting as well as informative.

Math Provided New Concepts of Learning

Postulates, proofs, and equations bewildered math students this year, but these were soon clarified by Mrs. Buckner and Mr. Poole. The Business Math class challenged percentage problems and increased their knowledge of business forms. Although there were many frustrations, the math students gained new concepts that prepared them for the future.

Bible Study Related to Students' Lives

In Bible class, students studied portions of the Old Testament and the four gospels. Their knowledge of theology was broadly expanded. Individual and group projects, as well as the Bible II trip to Fort Worth, added meaning to the teachings of Christ.

ABOVE LEFT: Mr. Mabry added to his bulletin board display. ABOVE Bible II students Frances Flournoy, Claiborne Sharp, and Becky Lockridge discussed plans for their movie. LEFT Bill Braddock, Albert Newman, and Debra Madden prepared a Passover meal as a six weeks project. OPPOSITE PAGE, LEFT Using a compass and protractor helped Millie Bouma prove a geometry theorem. RIGHT Mrs. Buckner explained a proving Algebra problem to Whitney Pesnell. BOTTOM Business math students used timed drills to increase their proficiency.

Physical Education Stimulated Involvement

Group sports gave students a chance to learn important rules, practice sportsmanship, and make new friends. Boys played football and soccer during their gym hour, while girls took skill tests in basketball, played volleyball and racketball, and bowled. Health studies, directed by Mrs. Garrett, provided a variation in gym activities and a knowledge of first aid. This year gym classes exercised students' minds and bodies.

Science Promoted Solid Thinking

The science curriculum offered new concepts in thinking. Lab experiments drew special interest to the biology, chemistry, and physical science classes taught by Mrs. Wilkins and Mrs. Colvin. This year, physics students went to the Centenary campus for instruction under Dr. Hanson. Science proved to be an exciting field of study.

PEOPLE

Leaders Excelled in Decisiveness

Members of the administration influenced the school's outcome this year through their many efforts. The Board of Trustees made recommendations concerning finances and school activities. As a member of the Board and headmaster of the school, Mr. Duncan directed students and faculty and was the prominent figure in decision-making. The administrative coordinator, Mr. Rogers, aided Mr. Gholson and Mr. Poole. All were assisted in their duties by the secretaries.

Instruction Complemented Scholarship

The effectiveness of the school centered on the faculty members. Using many methods, they communicated to the students a part of their knowledge. The classes, of course, were not always so eager to receive it, but over all teachers and students both profited from the school year.

The Senior Class of 1976 proved to be a very spirited one. They participated in all the pep rallies and won the spirit stick several times during the year. Many of them worked all night on a banner for Homecoming which won first place in the contest.

Class elections were held in September and a traditional Halloween party at the end of October began the year with great success. The unity of the senior class started new friendships and strengthened old ones. But most of all, it gave these students a realization of the new life they were to begin.

PERFECTION

Practice Strengthened Soccer Talent

Faced with the difficulties of a new coach and tough opponents, the soccer team finished with a disappointing season. Players exhibited skill and coordination in each game and practice, always struggling for better soccer scores. The background of this year's experience, however, prepared them hopefully for a more successful season next year.

District games
* State playoff game

A successful year surprised many as First Baptist won game after game in its first year in LISA. Coach Shaw and Coach Ebey pressed the team into its winning form. New equipment, such as two vans for transportation, a blocking sled, and goal posts made practice a little more thorough. A number of all district and all star players made the team's success even more dramatic. Everyone was sorry to see the season come to a close.

Staff Labored at Camp

Work began in June for the Patriarch crew. The Staff attended a yearbook workshop at Northeast Louisiana University where they planned the format of the book. Hard work and long hours were invested in each page. However, the effort was not wasted as the staff returned from camp with 9 out of 18 trophies.

Patriarch Staff Registered Memories

The Patriarch gave students an experience in journalistic layout and design. Students often employed themselves by hall walking, square counting, and teacher harassing. Then the deadline loomed into view and the annual room became a center of activity and last-minute work. The hours of work were countless and often forced the staff to spend whole evenings devoted to the yearbook.

TOP LEFT Missy Sonnier and Renee Lavelle discussed section deadlines. TOP RIGHT Kathy Boddie accepted her award for copy. ABOVE Karl Scherz and Mark Tuzley identified class pictures. "Z" Club Personified Service

"Z" Club members expended valuable effort in their various projects for the school and community. In working for the school, the group made football tags, sponsored the Canned Food Drive to increase spirit, and expressed their appreciation through "Teacher's Day." Locally First Baptist "Z" Club frequently visited Nursecare and Holy Angels. Their service reflected the brotherhood of First Baptist.

Liberty Bell Mirrored Patriot Emotion

The Liberty Bell broadened its horizons this year by putting out a weekly paper. The quality of this school newspaper rose since all the members of the staff took the new Journalism class. They were guided by Mrs. Buckner. The Liberty Bell reflected the present emotions of the student body and kept them up on major events of the school.

Cheerleaders Created a Winning Atmosphere

With the spirit of a winning season to come, the cheerleaders for 1975-76 began with a cheer to welcome everyone back to First Baptist. Throughout the year the cheerleaders created a sense of unity between those who attended First Baptist and the community around them. The goal of an exciting and fulfilling year, established by the cheerleaders, proved we had the "Spirit of '76."

Pep Squad Promoted Patriotism

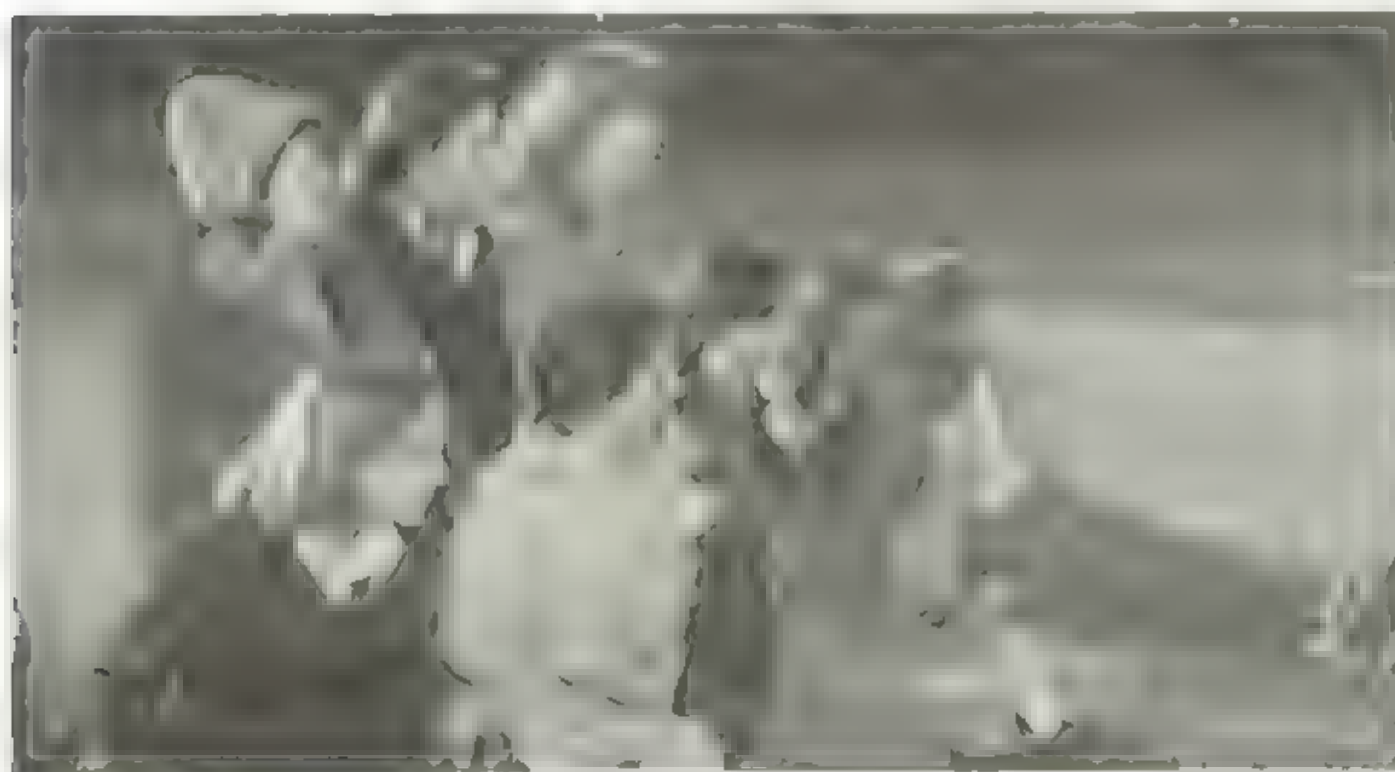

Throughout the year, the Pep Squad led the way in school spirit through spirit breakfasts, posters, banners, and above all, their participation at pep rallies and games. Big Brothers were chosen during their sports seasons and "little sisses" were identified at the season's end. Sponsored by Mrs. Garrett and Miss Bolch, the Pep Squad traveled to New Orleans for football and basketball games. The enthusiastic Pep Squad "KEPT THAT SPIRIT UP."

Pelican State Increased Civic Awareness

This year's Pelican State delegates were Janice Wilson and Jamie Robbins. They were chosen by their classmates and each spent a week at Louisiana Boys' and Girls' State studying the different forms of government. Being a delegate was an honor that broadly expanded their knowledge of government.

Homecoming Began New Tradition

Homecoming started a new tradition at First Baptist, and it proved to be a great success. The court was elected by the students and the results were announced in the school paper. The Homecoming Queen was Janice Wilson. The maids were Lila Hargrove, senior; Debra Madden, junior; Renee Stockard, sophomore; and Susan Hendrick, freshman. They were presented during the half time of the last district football game. A dance followed and was attended by many of the past First Baptist students. Most of the success of this event was attributed to the Student Council, which sponsored it.

Sweetheart, Maids Enriched Basketball Season

The election of basketball sweetheart and maids has become a tradition at First Baptist. On homecoming night the sweetheart and her court were announced and presented with roses. This event added excitement to both the games and school year.

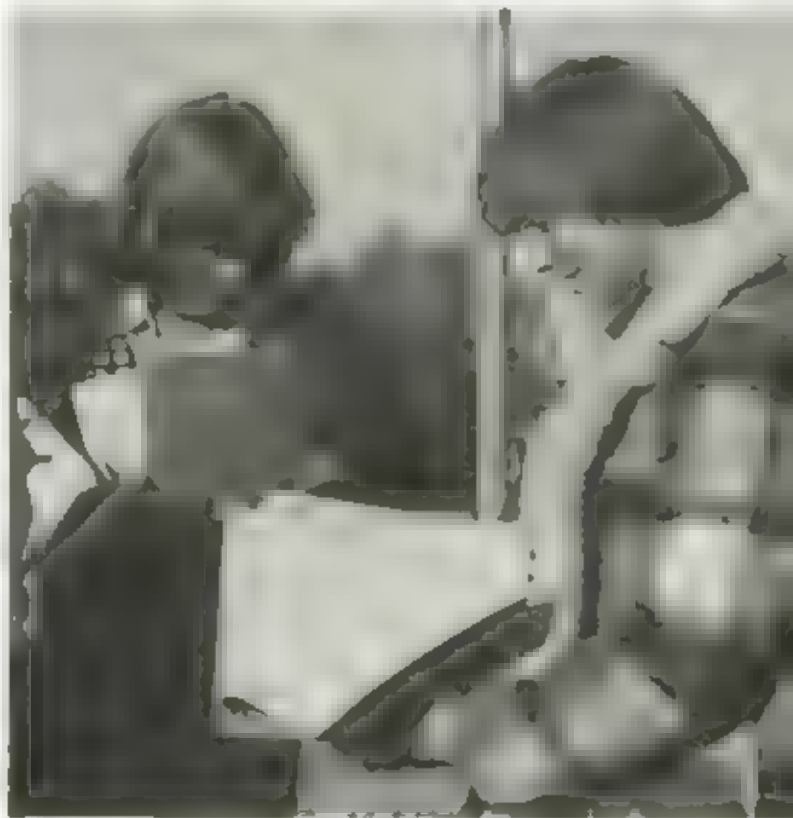

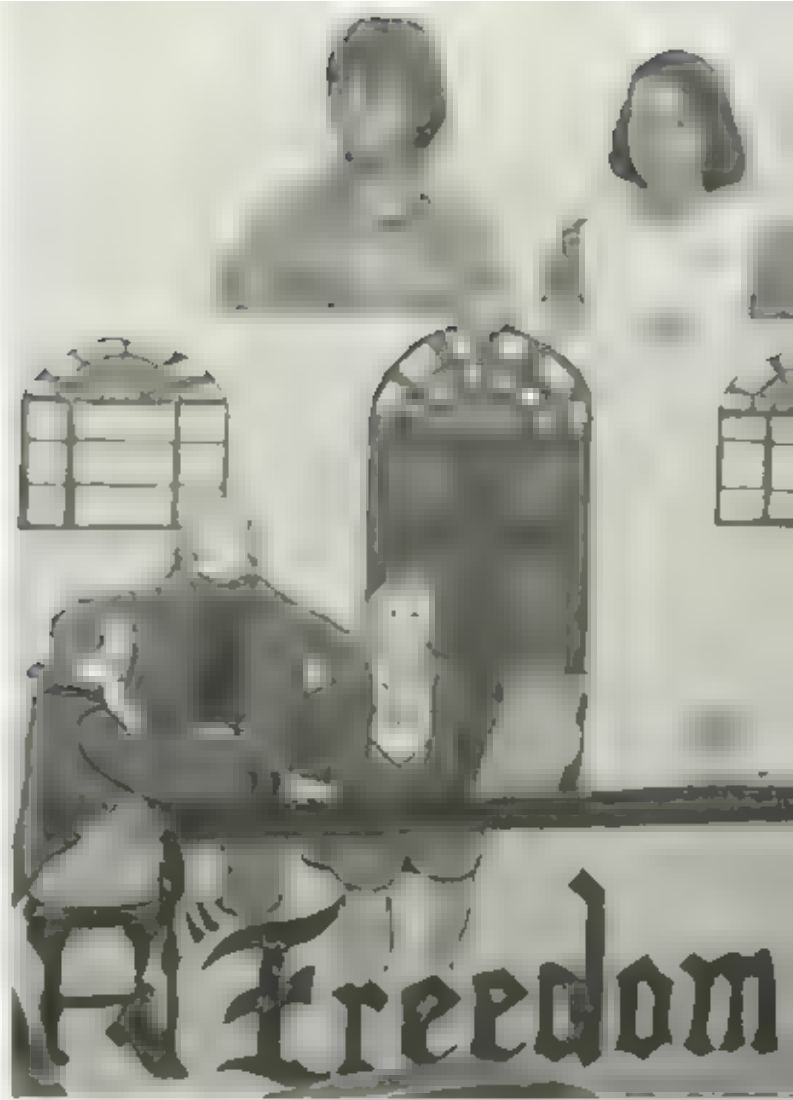

OPP. PAGE TOP: For Sweetheart Mary Anne Simmons, solitude provided a time for thought. OPP. PAGE LEFT: Hungry ducks eagerly accepted bread from Junior maid, Nancy Nelson. OPP. Art Club Acted as Creative Outlet

Another new tradition begun this year was the Art Club. Headed by Miss Bolch, the club undertook such projects as making coloring books for children at Confederate Hospital and painting posters on plywood for the Shreveport Jaycees. The club also learned the basic fundamentals of art.

Drama Demanded Self-Awareness

With the aid of a new constitution, the Drama Club again participated in various activities at First Baptist. While not producing a play of their own, they aided in the production of others by taking care of costumes and props. A new sponsor, Mrs. McMurrian, helped the club to grow.

The Bicentennial, with its far-reaching arms, has touched everyone. As the Patriots, we are especially aware of the birth of America, and suffer when she does. We, as a staff, have enjoyed capturing the memories of the First Baptist Patriots for others to share.

Very good fellow

in the summer
and the summer

you are very good

Very good

friend

Very good friend

And

very good

very good

Just a little note
to let you know
I'm happy.

Yours
Eddie
March 16

He is not well
look at the picture

He is really great every day at such a young age
I hope you will be happy
I hope you
will be happy
I hope you
will be happy

To a super friend. Keep on truckin'
